

The past is more than just a collection of memories. It reveals the purpose of life. We uncover our roots and our destiny. If we explore Kolkata's history, we can discover a diverse range of atmospheres. Some are colourful, some are black and white, and some are gray. This city has many faces. There are temples, mosques, churches, synagogues, and various colonial buildings. Amid all this, the pre-colonial period shines through. 'Nibirh' offers a direct taste of old Kolkata.

Since its inception in 2015, 'Nibirh' magazine has created a distinct identity in Bengal's cultural scene. More than just a publication, they are dedicated to uncovering and sharing knowledge about Bengal's rich heritage. It extends its reach through a dedicated book publishing division and immersive historical experiences. This varied approach allows the magazine to connect with its audience in multiple ways, promoting a deeper appreciation for the region's chronicled legacy.

Beyond print, 'Nibirh' actively brings the days of yore to life with its carefully organized heritage walks and tours. Starting in 2024, their Kolkata Heritage Walks have become a key part of the magazine's outreach, making factual expeditions engaging and accessible. What makes these excursions special is the quality of the guides. They are researchers and history enthusiasts who share their expertise and passion to bring out the stories hidden within Kolkata's old buildings and lively streets. Their involvement ensures that each walk is not just a sightseeing tour but a chance for discovery, enriched with scholarly insights and vibrant storytelling.

'Nibirh' aims to educate both local citizens and international visitors about India's ancient civilization and its rich cultural heritage. While the tours often focus on grand royal and aristocratic architecture and artifacts, showing the luxury of past times, they also highlight important subaltern lifestyles and folk traditions. This wide-ranging view offers a more comprehensive understanding of antiquity, acknowledging the contributions and experiences of all social groups. By contrasting the grand with the everyday, the magazine presents a deeper view of the bygone times, showing how different lives came together to shape today.

Moreover, the team behind 'Nibirh' prioritizes the safety and well-being of everyone on their heritage walks and tours. They understand the realities of exploring historical sites, and their thoughtful approach shows a commitment to responsible tourism. Above all, the main aim of 'Nibirh' is education. This principle guides everything they do, from creating content to running tours. Their strong dedication to high standards ensures that every interaction with 'Nibirh' is a valuable and enlightening experience, significantly contributing to the preservation and promotion of history and heritage.
